

Personal data policy (job applicants)

When you apply for a job with us, we take good care of your data.

GDPR stands for General Data Protection Regulation and this is a new EU regulation aiming at strengthening your personal integrity as a substitute for the Personal Data Protection Act.

We are responsible for the personal data about you that we process and that means that we take good care of the data that you send to us. This applies whether you apply for an advertised job or send us a blind application.

We store your personal data, including your name, e-mail address, application and CV, as well as any other enclosed documents. As these are ordinary personal data, we can process them without consent because as an applicant, you have forwarded such information to us yourself for the purpose of being hired.

Your data are stored in a safe way. And if you are hired, we store your data in a personal file. If we cannot find a suitable job for you at first, we will store your data for 4 months as of receipt, unless you specifically ask us to delete your data.

If you have sent us a blind application, we share it with relevant managers. If you have applied for an advertised position, your application is only shared with the department manager or with those persons who will take part in your job interview.

At Stjernholm A/S, we want you to feel safe with regards to us processing your data.

If you would like further information about your rights and about how we collect and process your data, you are always welcome to contact us.
